"Within the last hundred years there have been three nation-wide organizations that threatened our internal peace and security," Mr. Mukel said, "the Know Nothings in the decade preceding the Spanish-American War and the second Ku Klux Klan after the first world war."

The spearhead of the first two outfits, he said, was anti-Catholicism, which is still extant. The Klan, he said, was triple-pronged, stirring up resentments against Catholics, Negroes and Jews. These prejudices, he said, are still present, arising from anxieties about whether there will be jobs for all after the war.

"Each one of the three organizations has been stronger than the one before and has been able to attract more adherents. So far we have not had a hate and super-nationalist organization that combined with prejudice a definite ideology to apply to government. However, the world trend of such prejudice movements, as we see in Germany, is to embody an ideology. We may get such a development here the next time.

It will not be called fascism, because that term is in disrepute. But the tendencies toward reaction, of course, are much older than the word fascism. With the close association of race prejudice with illiberal ideas, we could not get any other type of ideology than one which would stop change toward a better world. The world is now too small for such development to be merely our domestic concern. What we do among ourselves has repercussions on the rest of the world.

Cost Of Help To Jews In Europe Will Be $20,000,000 By End Of Year

Dr. Joseph J. Schwartz, European Chairman of the American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee, left the United States by clipper for London to resume direction of the J.D.C.'s European activities. He had been in the U.S. since the end of August, consulting with J.D.C. officers and executives regarding immediate and post-war plans for the rescue, relief and rehabilitation of Jews in Europe.

Dr. Schwartz throughout the war has supervised J.D.C.'s overseas rescue and emergency relief operations. He will go to Switzerland from London to confer with Saly Mayer, J.D.C.'s Swiss representative who has been the liaison for the rescue and relief in occupied Europe since 1939, as well as director of J.D.C.'s Swiss relief program which provides partial or complete support for 18,000 of the 25,000 Jewish refugees who found safety in Switzerland.

Under the direction of Dr. Schwartz and Saly Mayer, the J.D.C. will give priority to the rescue of thousands of Jews who remain trapped by the Nazis in Hungary. Emphasis will also be placed on the bringing of additional relief to Rumania's 270,000 Jews of whom 200,000 are destitute. It is estimated that $1,000,000 will be required to provide emergency relief in this country where, although anti-Semitic regulations have been revoked, no steps have been taken to restore homes, jobs or property.

Keeping pace with the advancing Allied armies, the J.D.C. has entered liberated territory as rapidly as military conditions would permit and is already providing food, clothing and medicines in many liberated areas. The first ... [illegible] ... Tehran, are the first material aid going directly into that country.

An emergency grant of $100,000 to France, to provide for the maintenance of 2,000 children orphaned and separated from their families during the Nazi regime, was also made by the J.D.C. J.D.C. funds provided care for these same children when, throughout the German occupation, they were hidden in nunneries and monasteries, in parish churches and private homes by the French underground.

Under Dr. Schwartz's direction this summer, and in cooperation with the War Refugee Board and Jewish Agency, the J.D.C. arranged for the largest single rescue operation of the war, the evacuation of 5,000 Hungarian and Rumanian Jews to Palestine, for which the J.D.C. allocated $3,000,000.

During the first ten months of 1944 the J.D.C. appropriated a total of $17,987,114. Based on Dr. Schwartz's report detailing the increased relief and rescue opportunities in Hungary and Rumania, as well as those conditions recently liberated, J.D.C. officials anticipate an appropriation of $20,000,000 before the year ends.

The American Jewish Joint Distribution Committee has allocated 2,000,000 francs for maintenance of the schools in Morocco and Tunis founded by the Alliance Israelite Universelle, it was announced by Joseph C. Hyman, executive Vice-Chairman of the J.D.C. The subsidy, which amounts to over $40,000, will insure the continuance of modern education for the hundreds of youngsters. The support will include nutritious meals daily for the needy children.

Assistance by the J.D.C. to the Alliance Israelite began when the 85-year-old institution suffered severely shortly after the fall of France. Clean and well-equipped, the Alliance schools have long been ventilated classrooms of other oriental schools. Children attending the schools receive a specifically Jewish education as well as regular secular training.

During the last five years local relief committees in several Polish cities successfully maintained soup kitchens which provided meals to scores of thousands of Jews in the ghettos and assisted in other ways.

When the Nazi grip tightened and the possibilities for borrowing began to disappear, the J.D.C. managed to send funds into the camps and certain parts of the country through various underground channels.

Since 1942 the J.D.C. has been conducting a program of material

Zionists See Disaster To Cause In Moyne Murder

The two Cairo prisoners who confessed that they assassinated Lord Moyne, British Minister of State resident in the Middle East, on orders from the Stern group of extreme Jewish nationalists, according to police, gave their names as Moshe Cohen and Itzakch Salzmann and contended that Lord Moyne's policies were prejudicial to Jewish aspirations for a national home in Palestine.

Many Zionist leaders, however, have expressed horror over the assassination and condemned the terrorists' policies in Palestine and elsewhere.

Authorities at Cairo said there probably were "several dozen" other members of the gang at large with missions similar to that of the two who slew Lord Moyne. They recalled the wounding last August 8 of Sir Harold MacMichael, outgoing British High Commissioner for Palestine, who was shot from ambush near Jerusalem.

Police said the prisoners, one of whom was wounded by Egyptian police as they fled across the Residence grounds, had declared: "We are members of the Fighters for Freedom of Israel and what we did was on instructions from this organization."

The confessions were obtained, it was announced, after 36 hours of questioning by members of the British Palestine Police who flew to Cairo for the continuing inquiry.

Meanwhile an elaborate military funeral was held for Lord Moyne and his chauffeur, L/Cpl. Fuller, who were shot dead as they drove up to the Minister's residence.

The Grand Rabbi of Egypt and the vice-president of the Jewish community of Cairo were among the mourners at All Saints English Cathedral.

Zionists in Cairo described the slaying of the British Resident Minister in the Middle East as "the greatest disaster to our cause," and expressed fear that it would aggravate anti-Semitism throughout the world.

Prime Minister Churchill said in London that he had no official information giving a clew as to the motives for the assassination, or fixing its authorship. He added that Lord Moyne had devoted himself this year to a solution of the Zionist problem, and that the Jews in Palestine "had rarely lost

Noted Research Chemist

... Bergmann, ... Chemical ... Hospital. ... He suffered from a ... illness and had not been on full duty at the institute since his vacation.

Protein chemistry was his particular field, and in this specialized phase of organic chemistry he had made important progress and increased the store of scientific knowledge.

By new methods, and with procedures invented for the purpose, Dr. Bergmann had established the intimate mode of action of protein-splitting enzymes, making it possible to determine to a greater degree the synthesis of peptides, or a greater knowledge than had ever been attained before as to why the component parts of proteins form their endless variety of combinations. A new basis for the classification of these protein-splitting enzymes was thus approached.

Born in Fuerth, Germany, Dr. Bergmann received a Bachelor of science degree from the University of Munich in 1907 and a Ph. D. from the University of Berlin in 1911. He held the pandozent title of privat-docent in Berlin in 1920.

Dr. Bergmann entered the laboratory of Emil Fischer in 1911 and was his principal collaborator by the time the latter died in 1919. As a result of his work with Dr. Fischer, he was appointed in 1921 to the directorship of the Kaiser Wilhelm Institute for Leather Research in Dresden. He was president of the International Society of Leather Chemists from 1928 to 1933. He was dealing extensively with the chemistry of proteins as well as the chemical aspects of leather technology while in this field.

Due to changing conditions in Germany, Dr. Bergmann resigned his position at Dresden and came to the U.S. not very long after Hitler's rise to power. Because of his distinguished record he was made an associate member of the Rockefeller Institute of Medical Research in 1934 and three years later was made a member of the institute.

After the advent of war he devoted his energies, at the request of the Office of Scientific Research and Development, to the study of problems in the interest of the armed forces.

Dr. Bergmann was a member of several scientific societies. He was an honorary member of the Harvey Society.

He leaves a widow, Martha Hutzer Bergmann, and two children, Peter G. and Esther H. Bergmann.

ROTHSCHILD REGAINS FRENCH CITIZENSHIP WITH EVERY RIGHT

Baron Henri de Rothschild is again a French citizen with every right attached to such citizenship. As a corollary he can claim all his possessions confiscated by the Vichy Government. He decided the Council of State, which is the supreme court of administrative law in France.

This judgment confirms the decision of the de Gaulle Government abrogating all discriminatory legislation enacted by Vichy and, moreover, it applies to all other persons deprived of citizenship for similar reasons.

Baron de Rothschild was included in October, 1940, in a list of persons who left France for the United States about the time of the armistice and the specific offense charged was flight from his native land. Other members of the Rothschild family were involved. Subsequently Vichy proceeded against the Rothschild family under its anti-Semitic laws and most of their possessions were confiscated and sold.

CLASS IN COOKERY

APPLE CRUMB PUDDING

2 heaping glasses of bread crumbs
one beaten egg
three tablespoons sugar
three tablespoons shortening
pinch of cinnamon

Mix together until crumbly. Melt enough shortening into a deep baking dish so that the bottom of the dish will easily be covered with it; add a layer of crumbs; and a layer of grated sour apples; over the apples, sprinkle brown sugar. Keep adding a layer of crumbs and a layer of apples, covering the apples each time with brown sugar, until the crumb-mixture is used up, and the last layer is a layer of crumbs. Spread melted shortening over the top; and bake in a 250-degree oven until crisp, and apples are tender.

Mrs. Louis Rosenstein,
417 St. Joseph Boulevard West, Montreal.

BROILED PEARS

Dip halves of fresh pears, pared, halved and cored, or canned pears, in lemon juice or French dressing. Fill the cavity in each with butter. Sprinkle with brown sugar and add a little grated lemon rind. Broil three to four inches from the heat for five to seven minutes, or until browned. Serve as a meat accompaniment, or as a dessert with crackers and cheese.

We Confront The Peace

"And it shall come to pass in the end of days,
That the mountain of the Lord's house shall be established
as the top of the mountains,
And shall be exalted above the hills;
And all nations shall flow into it,
And He shall judge between the nations,
And shall decide for many peoples;
And they shall beat their swords into plowshares,
And their spears into pruning hooks;
Nation shall not lift up sword against nation,
Neither shall they learn war any more."

Isaiah II.

The twenty-sixth anniversary of the "Cease Fire" command of World War I was just observed. Much has happened since that memorable day of November 11, 1918. We remember not only the sacrifices of millions in the last war, but to-day our hearts are anguished, too, for the millions now sacrificing anew to make this world of ours warless.

What is the cause of war? One simple word is the answer, "Anarchy"! War comes into the world because nations try to live together without government. Anarchy occurs whenever men or nations try to live together without surrendering their sovereignty. Of course, there are other causes for strife among nations, but anarchy is the sine qua non. Among these other causes are: economic rivalry, cultural antipathies, individual acts of injustice, hate and fear, and factions and ideologies.

Everybody, professional and amateur, seems to be trying his hand in post-war planning. The daily press is glutted with peace plans. The most majestic plan is that of the "Dumbarton Oaks". The four great powers of the United Nations have set forth their tentative plan for world peace. We feel that it is in the public interest to present a brief outline of the four power proposal to awaken interest in this all-important subject.

Membership in the new "League of Nations" will be open to all [illegible] states. The organization is made up of a [illegible] Council, [illegible] Court of Justice and necessary [illegible]. It will unite nations in the Security Council. This Council consists of representatives of the United States, the United Kingdom of Great Britain and North Ireland, the Union of Soviet Socialist Republics of Russia and China. France, too, is to be a member of the Security Council. Six members of the Assembly will have temporary seats of a two-year term in the Security Council. This body's main concern will be the maintenance of peace and security.

All members of the new world organization will be bound to carry out decisions of the Council. The voting procedure in the Council has been left open for the present. The Council will have the power to determine what diplomatic, economic or other measures should be employed to give effect to its decisions. Each state is to contribute armed forces as may be agreed upon for the purpose of maintaining an international police force.

The foregoing presents important points in the Dumbarton Oaks plan. It is far from a perfect mechanism and open to much criticism, since it will be primarily dominated by the four mighty powers at the expense of the lesser states.

Soon, please God, we shall write a new peace amidst a world weary and tired of this madness — war. It is not so much of new peace plans that we are in need. What we truly need is that the signatories to any peace plan keep the pledge and make that plan function. After all, there was nothing essentially wrong with the constitution of the League of Nations. The League did not fail, we rather failed the League. In this connection it is proper to record the story which Lincoln Steffens heard while attending the peace conference at Versailles in 1919.

Clemenceau had turned to Wilson, Lloyd George, and Orlando, and asked them whether they really meant what they said about seeking "Permanent Peace". They assured him they did. He asked them whether they had counted the cost of such a peace. What cost? Clemenceau replied that he meant such things as relinquishment of empire, and all claims to empire, the tearing down of tariff walls, the removal of immigration restrictions. When the others quickly told him that they did not have all this in mind, he said, "Then you don't mean peace, you mean war".

Yes, men want peace, but they do not want to sacrifice in its cause. Yet world peace will never be realized unless we do bring sacrifices for its establishment and maintenance. Peace, too, must be made as thrilling as war and above all, the concept of peace must be global. The millions of India and China must be given a chance to help build the perpetual peace.

Judaism has for centuries taught the belief in the Fatherhood of God. The corollary of this belief is the Brotherhood of Man. Racial arrogance, hence, is a grievous evil. Mankind must be convinced that there is no alternative to the moral law proclaimed in Scripture. The hope in this tragic hour for mankind lies in the dream that it will cast aside selfishness and greed and rise to prophetic spiritual levels and find itself creating a world commonwealth of nations.

The four great powers proclaim themselves as guardians of the peace of the future. But who will watch the guardians of the peace? When Juvenal pictured the corruptions in ancient Rome, he said that the women appointed to protect the younger ones were themselves in need of watching.

Some real problems facing us now are the following: (1) Can we build some sort of world organization? Can the League of Nations be made to live again? (2) Can we protect the weak from the strong? (3) Can we provide food and shelter for the starving and homeless?

Peace cannot be won unless for it we do at least a portion of what we do in war. Peace is not impossible of achievement. It may come to us first in installments. But come it must. We have succeeded in outlawing polygamy, piracy, and slavery. These were at one time recognized institutions in society. We shall yet outlaw this outworn primitive diabolic business of wholesale suicide, this vicious thing named war. If we will make peace a great cause nothing can stop us from success.

Will World War II have been fought in vain? We wonder! For the only thing more terrible than to go through the hardships of war is to come home and find that it was all in vain.

In 1922 we read C. E. Montague's book "Disenchantment". We quote therefrom a startling, memorable passage: "Hundreds of thousands of men who are now dead felt that if they were killed their sacrament would be a new Europe not accursed or soiled with the hates and greed of the old. Then they or, if not they, their sons might breathe a new, clement air they had willingly hung themselves up to rot on the sacred wires of Love or wriggled to death, slow, hour by hour, in the cold filth of Broodseinde. Now all was done that men could do, and all was done in vain".

We won the first world war but we lost what we fought for. We lost the peace. What will it be now? We must obtain the victory. It is not plans for peace we so much need as a consecration for perpetual peace. Surely, if nations would [illegible] these ancient commandments from the Mosaic Code: "Thou shalt not steal" and "Thou shalt not kill", war would [illegible] cease. All economic and social problems would be solved. I hope these Mosaic commandments are just too simple. Surely if nations fail to observe the simple commandments [illegible] chance in there for them to follow complicated peace [illegible]. What we need now is fidelity to those peace plans we already have. Let there be no contradictions between what [illegible] pledge in treaties to do, and what they really do and mean [illegible].

The other war to be won beyond the military is the [illegible] against duplicity and insincerity in the dealings of nations. This will be the greatest victory men and will make the greatest step forward toward perpetual world peace.

"Grant us peace. Thy most precious gift. O, thou [illegible] source of peace, and enable Israel to be its messenger unto the peoples of the earth."

"Sometimes when people annoy me,
I tell them without reason
That for what it cost me to be free,
I might have had an easier."

Some weeks ago this editor received from J. B. Salsberg, member of the Provincial Parliament of Ontario, an article dealing with the Ontario Racial Discrimination Act. Because the subject is of interest to readers and of considerable concern to the Jewish people, and because in its original form the article was somewhat too long, this column will attempt to condense it so that it will stand a better chance of being read by a greater number. Mr. Salsberg's purpose in writing it was to clear up some of the misunderstanding which surrounds the scope and effectiveness of the new law.

Before the opening of the present Legislature, Mr. Salsberg wrote a letter to Premier George Drew, urging him to introduce legislation to outlaw acts of discrimination against any citizen or group of citizens because of race, religion, or national origin; and enclosed a memorandum listing specific acts of discrimination to illustrate the kind of legislation required if such acts are to be prevented. A similar request was also made by representatives of the Canadian Jewish Congress and its Public Relations Committee. During a personal discussion, the Premier suggested that Mr. Salsberg provide him with another memorandum outlining specific proposals for an anti-discrimination bill.

The proposals which Mr. Salsberg forwarded to the Premier of Ontario would have made it unlawful for any person, firm, corporation or public Commission or Board to deny employment to any person on account of race, color, or creed; or to publish advertisements announcing intentions to practice such discrimination; unlawful to demand of any person a declaration as to his national origin, race, or creed when applying for employment. No proprietor or his agents could deny to any person the services of hotels, restaurants, or places of amusement or recreation for the above reasons, or display signs with discriminatory regulations. No one could print, publish, or distribute papers, magazines or books containing defamatory or false statements against any religious, racial, or national group which tend to create racial and religious hatreds. Mr. Salsberg also proposed to make it unlawful to prevent any one from renting or buying property on the above grounds of color, et cetera; or for municipal or county governments to adopt by-laws in favor of such discriminatory restrictions. His aim was to have all restrictions and regulations applicable equally to all people.

The Bill, which was introduced by Leslie Blackwell, Attorney General, on behalf of the Government, was adopted in March, as "an act to prevent the publication of discriminatory matter referring to race or creed." This legislation made it unlawful to publish or display on lands or premises or in a newspaper or through the radio any discriminatory sign or representation against any person or class of persons because of race or creed. The penalty is $100 for a first offence, $200 for a second. In addition the judge may enjoin a person from continuing the violation.

The Bill constituted a very positive achievement in the fight against anti-Semitism, according to Mr. Salsberg; but it was [illegible] any other way.

A comparison of the bill as adopted and the proposals for it which had been made to the Premier show how inadequate the Racial Discrimination Law is. There are no sections in it outlawing employment discrimination, or the exclusion of people from hotels, places of amusement, et cetera, or the publishing of defamatory printed matter against any religion, race, or national group; or such property restrictions as outlined in proposals.

An employer who refuses to hire anyone because he is a Jew cannot be prosecuted. Neither can any one be prosecuted who denies to a person because he is a Jew the right to buy land or a home in areas where owners place restrictions against Jews. Nor is there legal basis for action against a hotel owner or public beach operator or summer cottage owner who refuses to Jews accommodations or access to beaches and recreation grounds. Only such discrimination must now be practiced more indirectly than formerly because the law prevents the public display or public announcement of intentions to discriminate, but it does not end the discrimination itself. The one thing the Racial Discrimination law now in effect in the Province of Ontario does do is to keep people from advertising in any form that "Jews are not allowed", or that Catholics or Negroes are not allowed, or "Gentiles Only", and the like.

So, the law is very limited in scope and effect, just a first step, a very small step against anti-Semitic and other discriminatory practices. But: it was a government measure; it was supported by all parties in the Legislature; and there was only one dissenting voice. Mr. Salsberg thinks that people should know just what the law is and what it is not; also that there is considerable misunderstanding about it. Discriminatory acts are not diminishing but are actually on the increase and in order to secure the required legislation it is necessary first of all to understand the Ontario Law. Dispelling illusions about the Act will aid in developing the fight against anti-Semitic and other defamatory manifestations.

What A Study Of Jewish-Negro Relationships Showed

The Detroit Jewish Chronicle says:

The study of Jewish-Negro relationships, sponsored by the Detroit Jewish Community Council, The National Association for the Advancement of Colored People, and Wayne University, and carried on by Mrs. Eleanor Paperno, Alvin D. Loving, Graduate Fellows, and Donald C. Marsh, Assistant Professor in Sociology at Wayne University, has been released.

The investigators found that the relationships existing between Jews and Negroes in the Hastings St., Oakland Ave. and West Warren Ave. districts were not responible for the June, 1943 riots. The investigators state that it was a conflict between two racial groups—white and Negro—and it might have broken out in any densely populated area.

Two paragraphs of the findings are particularly significant. They are Paragraph XV, which reads as follows:

XV. Over 90 per cent of the Jews had pleasant experiences with Negroes as domestics, over 70 per cent as customers, and 59 per cent as neighbors. Rumors about conflicts in these relationships seem to be highly exaggerated.

and paragraph XX, which reads as follows:

XX. The amount of merchant-customer conflict is more related to the general economic and social character of the area than to the factor of racial ownership. The lower the economic and social conditions in a given area, the greater the amount of conflict engendered. In Detroit, this is illustrated by the presence of the greatest amount of Negro-Jewish conflict in the Hastings area, which is the poorest of the three areas studied.

The lower the social and economic conditions in a given area, the greater amount of conflict engendered.

In our opinion, any studies made anywhere, would confirm this finding. Despite this knowledge, we shall, no doubt, continue to hope that somehow these conflicts will disappear without much being done to raise the economic and social conditions.

We can go on, blithely hoping that the lid will not blow off and that these people whose degraded economic and social condition engenders resentment, distrust and hatred, will not break out into open conflict with their neighbors.

The acid test of European culture and civilization has been the social and economic treatment of the Jews, but in the United States the test is the economic and social treatment of the Negroes.

Our record is not one to which we can point with pride, but we can make progress in this area, as we have made it in the area of political freedom and equality for the Negro.

COST OF HELP

aid to thousands of Polish refugees in Soviet Asia through an effective system of packages individually addressed. At the present time over 10,000 packages are sent to them from Teheran each month. Names and addresses of the [illegible] families are supplied by the Polish Government in exile in London.

The packages consist of foodstuffs, clothing or materials with which to make necessary garments and other needed items.

The materials were purchased in India, Palestine, Egypt and South Africa and are shipped from Teheran, where the J.D.C.'s stockpiles are located. In recent months these were augmented by the purchase of $400,000 worth of Land-Lease supplies from United States authorities in the Middle East. For its package program in 1944 the J.D.C. has allocated $1,200,000.

The first opportunity for an on-the-scene survey by the J.D.C. will become possible with the entry in Poland of the UNRRA delegation soon to arrive there. Jacob Trobe, a member of the overseas staff of the J.D.C. is included in the UNRRA mission to Poland. He will also make a report to the J.D.C. based upon his observations.

The J.D.C. receives its income from the campaign collections of the United Jewish Appeal for Refugees, Overseas Needs and Palestine.

NATION WARNED

L. K. Smith, who are only too ready to lead the bandwagon. Hostile impulses continue to rise in the free-for-all, and race prejudice will be there as a ready outlet."

The best place to start fighting prejudice, he said, is the cradle. Education cannot take the full load because it is bound up in the national culture. There are "plenty of men of good will" in the nation, but they are too complacent. Race prejudice would disappear he said, if the entire nation were aroused somehow to work for a better world offering peace and security and banishing want and fear.

"Those of us who are white are having, and so far wanting, our last chance to be accepted on an equal basis with the other peoples of a world which is two-thirds colored. The 300-year advantage we had through the industrial revolution is coming to a close as the remainder of the world becomes industrialized and capable of producing modern weapons of war.

The New Zionist Organization in London issued a statement which said it "emphatically condemns this act of terrorism, which is stated to have been committed by Jews." The statement added that an immediate inquiry should be ordered into the recent outbreak of terrorism in Palestine and into its causes."

The Associated Press reported officials in Cairo had announced the assassins were Jewish terrorists. Lord Strabolgi, Labor peer, said in London Lord Moyne was murdered probably by Jewish agents, according to a Reuter dispatch.

Palestine police authorities found no papers in the clothing of the two men. They had been stripped by crowds that quickly lynch them after they had fired three pistol shots into Lord Moyne as he started from his automobile at his home.

Police, after a preliminary investigation, expressed belief that the assassins had been in Cairo about ten days. They had used bicycles three times to travel between Moyne's movements and were using bicycles in the attempt to escape.

It was learned that Lord Moyne's house had been [illegible] at his request because [illegible] liked show of any sort and insisted that he be guarded only at night.
